Midwest Children's Resource Center

Midwest Children's Resource Center (MCRC) is a regional, medical, child abuse evaluation program of Children's Hospitals and Clinics of St. Paul and Minneapolis, MN. With two major Children's Hospital campuses, a close affiliation with the University of Minnesota School of Medicine and a long history of regional and national leadership, MCRC provides a rich clinical experience with strong mentoring and progressive responsibility. Opportunities for research and community advocacy are plentiful. The program is currently 2-3 years in length depending on professional goals.
